The ABI/INFORM collection features thousands of full-text peer reviewed journal articles, dissertations, working papers, key business and economics periodicals, such as The Economist, Sloan Management Review, and major news sources like the Wall Street Journal. The coverage provided by ABI/INFORM offers to you, as a researcher, a complete picture of companies and business trends around the world based on academically sound articles, books, and news reports.

In GM599, you will be writing a capstone research paper called the Applied Research Project. Throughout your Master of Science in Management educational journey you have been guided to seek relevant and credible information from peer reviewed research studies. You will continue this practice in GM599.

When you click on the Library, you will be taken to this opening page. Click on the Databases List and you will find ABI/INFORM. Take a few moments to become familiar with the search capabilities. As you take the next steps in constructing your Applied Research Project, please use the Library service to assist and support your capstone research project.

One of ABI/INFORM and the ProQuest platform's strengths is to give you the tools necessary to locate information whose format and authority match your research needs and scope. On the results page, don't neglect the limiters to the left of the results list. Using the options under Source Types, you can limit your results list to just articles from Scholarly Articles, Dissertations and Theses, Trade Journals, Reports, and other options. The options to limit by publication date, peer reviewed research, or by subject heading can help you quickly refine an unwieldy results list.

Another great feature is the option to browse for specific kinds of reports, particularly market, industry and company research. Click Browse at the top of the screen in ABI/INFORM to find direct access to First Research industry reports and others. Remember, ProQuest claims to offer over 100 million full text articles in ABI/INFORM, so searching strategically will pay off.

Please be in the practice to use the ABI/INFORM collection and ProQuest platform as a Library feature that will support your investigation of an organizational problem in constructing your own Applied Research Project.
