Step 4: Look for any highlighted content that shows up as a match to another source. Titles, assignment instructions, and references may be highlighted if you used a generic title or worksheet. References in APA are formatted the same way, so if someone else has used the source in an APA paper it will show up as a match. This is fine.

If you use sources in your paper, it is generally best to paraphrase by putting the ideas into your own words and adding an in-text citation or signal phrase to the sentence to give credit to the source. Pay attention to any passages in your assignment that are highlighted. They should have quotation marks and an in-text citation or signal phrase if they are not assignment instructions, a title, or an APA reference entry. Assignments should mostly contain your own ideas and quotes should be limited.

Step 5:—If you see any errors, make the necessary corrections and resubmit your assignment before the assignment deadline has passed.
